

Message from Bishop Seamus

We are blessed with many devoted and committed Extraordinary Ministers of Holy Communion who not only help their brothers and sisters receive the Lord at Mass but also express our concern for those who are sick and housebound. Ministers going out to those unable to join us for Sunday Mass have made it possible for very large numbers of parishioners to receive Holy Communion frequently.

I would be grateful if you could remind your Extraordinary Ministers of our gratitude for all that they do but also to point out that on being given the Blessed Sacrament they are expected to go immediately to the home of that housebound person. For example, Extraordinary Ministers may not take the Blessed Sacrament from a Saturday Vigil Mass to their own homes and keep it there overnight with a view to visiting the sick the next morning. Where the custom is to go to the housebound on a Sunday Morning while there is no convenient celebration of Mass on that day then provision should be made for ministers to obtain the Blessed Sacrament from the Tabernacle shortly before they exercise their ministry.

Mass for the Sick and Housebound

We are having a Mass for Sick and Housebound parishioners on Friday 1st December at 1.00pm. Last year the attendance of parishioners was disappointing, even though we have a number of sick and housebound parishioners. If anyone knows a sick or housebound parishioner who wishes to attend, is there any way we can make sure they are here for the Mass. It is difficult to officially ask parishioners to give a lift to someone, but if a parishioner were to organise some means of transport to help out, it would be appreciated. Those who visit the sick are asked to encourage them to attend. After Mass, refreshments will be available in the Hall. The Mass is open to all who are sick and to all who do not normally manage to get to Mass. Let's try to make this one good way of reaching out to some of our parishioners. A list, if attending, is on the noticeboard.

Traidcraft

A catalogue is available in the Narthex for orders of Christmas cards and gifts.

Annual Mass Count

We recently had to take the Annual Mass count on four Sundays of October. As a result of that count our Average attendance at the Vigil Mass is now 99. The church is built to seat over 200.

What are we doing to evangelise and reach out to those who we know should be here with us, even those from our own families and our friends. What can you do to encourage family and friends to come to regular Mass?
